About PEAK Learning, Inc.

Founded in 1987, PEAK is the world's leader in measuring and strengthening human resilience.

PEAK Learning® is a global-reaching research, consulting, training, and coaching firm dedicated to creating more resilient individuals and organizations, equipped to thrive in an adversity-rich world.

Dr. Paul G. Stoltz, PEAK's Founder and CEO, and the PEAK team are perhaps best known as the originators and central source for the global best practice in human resilience—the Adversity Quotient® (AQ®) theory, methods, and solutions.

Harvard Business School has selected PEAK's AQ methodology for use within its prestigious Executive Education and MBA programs. "Resilience 2.0" is the Harvard Business Review article (Winter 2010) co-authored by Dr. Paul G. Stoltz.

PEAK believes that resilience lies at the epicenter—it undergirds and has the singular potential to strengthen all facets of human endeavor.

At its core, AQ consists of scientifically grounded, robust measurement tools and methods for assessing and measurably improving resilience, performance, innovation, accountability, health, agility, grit, innovation and effectiveness. Each AQ tool, program and solution can be used to work through and harness any sort or magnitude of challenges and aspirations.

AQ is used worldwide to create more resilient individuals, teams, organizations and cultures.

The PEAK team of dedicated purpose-driven professionals bring customized AQ-based assessments, programs, coaching, research, keynotes and solutions to clients in more than 50 countries.

So far, more than 500,000 people worldwide have measured and strengthened their AQs as a path to richer lives and endeavors.

PEAK founded and directs The Global Resilience Institute, the leading worldwide consortium of researchers and practitioners dedicated to exploring, substantiating, expanding and improving resilience-based solutions for all facets of society. The findings and global dialogue from this outreach effort ensure that the ever-evolving AQ tools and methods remain both fresh and robust.

PEAK's clients apply AQ to achieve extraordinary results. They span all industries, sizes, and geographies—from the Fortune 50 to entrepreneurial start-ups and national governments—applying AQ to their unique adversities and opportunities. PEAK helps its business clients achieve competitive immunity. Given that most organizations face essentially the same challenges, those who respond better and faster, win.

Dr. Stoltz has authored three international best-selling books on AQ, printed in 14 languages, and has a fourth book underway. PEAK and AQ have been featured in the world's top business, industry, and popular media, a sample of which includes Harvard Business Review, Asia 21, Human Resources Executive, Entrepreneur, Success, Fast Company, Wall Street Journal, as well as CNN, Fox, CNBC, Sky, NBC, CBS, ABC, PBS, and multiple appearances on the The Oprah Winfrey Show.

With its global headquarters located on the central coast, in San Luis Obispo, California, PEAK has an expanding community of licensed AQ Affiliate Partners that includes Australia, Canada, Japan, Latin America and the US.
